RAIN FOREST

Tropical Rainforest in Vythiri

The Vythiri rainforest is a part of the Nilgiri Biosphere Reserve, a UNESCO World Heritage Site on the southern fringe of the Deccan Plateau and home to amphibians, birds, fish, mammals, reptiles, flowering plants and butterflies. The landscape is majestic, composed of rugged, lofty ridges interspersed with dense tropical forests, waterfalls and mountain streams. An ideal destination for travellers with a passion for the outdoors, outback trails and trekking routes snake through the forests with many spots ideal for adventure sports.

The evergreen forests here are the most species-rich eco region in peninsular India. Ancient, indigenous nomadic tribes, mostly hunter gatherers with age old customs and rituals inhabit the forests, their lives are intrinsically linked and tuned to pulse of the forests. The rainforests of Vythiri also contain the fascinating Edakkal Caves, a Neolithic cave dwelling with Petroglyphs, the only known example in South India and a protected UNESCO Heritage Site.

The recorded history of this district exists only from the 10th century onward. The British opened up the plateau for cultivation of tea and other cash crops by constructing roads across the mountains, through which settlers poured in seeking their fortunes in the virgin forest lands that offered incredible yields of cash crops.
